JOHN FLISS AND WIFE, 4 CHILDREN AND BOARDER MEET DEATH AT QUEENSBORO

ONLY ONE OCCUPANT OF HOUSE, 11-YEAR-OLD CHILD, ESCAPES FIRE

Queensboro, N. Y., March 24.—(U.P.)—Seven persons, including four small children; were burned to death today in a fire which destroyed a small frame house in the Little Neck section of Queensborough.

Only one occupant of the house, 11 years old, escaped. He jumped from the kitchen window.

The dead: John Fliss, 50; his wife, Mary, 40; their children, John, 7, Stella, 6, Helen, 4, and Mary, 13, and a boarder, Charles Korzan, 42.

The flames ate rapidly through the small, wooden structure, and the heat was so intense when firemen arrived, they could not approach the place. Occupants of a half dozen nearby houses, which were of like construction, were driven from their homes and firemen concentrated their efforts on keeping the fire from spreading.

After the flames had subsided, firemen entered the building and found the badly charred bodies of the seven victims in beds on the first floor.

MOTHER AND 2 SONS BURNED TO DEATH

Redwood Falls, March 24.—Mrs. F. N. Stronach and her two sons were burned to death today when fire started by mice chewing on matches in the woodbox ignited their farm home several miles from here.

The father of the dead boys, another son and brother were burned severely by the flames and were in critical conditions in a hospital.

The two dead lads were George, 12, and Gordon, 10.

William Stronach, a brother-in-law of the dead woman, and the father were so severely burned in their battle to rescue the family that their recovery was doubtful, hospital attaches said.

The father was burned when he rescued his six-year-old son who was in the hospital with minor burns.

The brother tried vainly to save his sister-in-law and the two boys but the flames had burned them so severely that they died.

Mrs. Stronach had saved two small children when she reentered the burning building. Her brother followed her but had to turn back before a wall of flames. When Mrs. Stronach was found in the building she had collapsed.

The father had carried his six-year-old son out and then collapsed into the arms of neighbors who had been attracted by the flames.

SUSPECTS IN BANK ROBBERY PLEAD NOT GUILTY IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, March 24.—(U.P.)—William Keller and Joseph Conroy, suspects in several Minnesota bank robberies, pleaded not guilty when they were arraigned in district court today in connection with the robbery of the Payne Avenue State Bank, St. Paul, last week.

The third suspect, George Vreeland, entered no plea and his case was continued until tomorrow on application of his attorney. Judge Carleton McNally said trial of Conroy and Keller will start March 31.

Keller and Vreeland were arrested two hours after the Payne Avenue bank was robbed of $3,000 and part of the loot was found in their possession. Conroy was arrested an hour later.

Among the robberies of which the three men are suspected, police said, was that of a bank at Lonsdale, Minn.

CY THOMPSON RELEASED FROM STILLWATER PRISON

Stillwater, Minn., March 24.—(U.P.)—Ransome J. (Cy) Thompson, millionaire embezzler, was released on parole today from the Minnesota state prison.

The fallen financial genius left the penitentiary with a brother, H. A. Thompson of Minneapolis. They were believed to have left for the brother's home.

Warden J. D. Sullivan would not confirm the report of Thompson's release, but he was known to have left the prison.

Thompson was granted a parole Saturday after serving eight and one-half years of a 15-year sentence. He was convicted of embezzling $1,187,000 from the Hormel Packing company, Austin, while employed as comptroller of currency for the company.

TEXAS GUINAN ONLY A MEMORY TO CHICAGO TODAY

"QUEEN OF NIGHT CLUBS" GIVEN PERMISSION BY POLICE TO DEPART WEEK EARLIER

HER NIGHT CLUB, THE GREEN MILL, IS PADLOCKED BY CHICAGO AUTHORITIES

Chicago, March 24.—(U.P.)—Texas Guinan was only a memory to Chicago today.

Texas, known far and wide as the "queen of night clubs" who deserted the east for the middle west because, to use her own words, "westerners were bigger and better suckers than easterners," was given permission by Chicago police to depart for the east just one week sooner than she had expected.

Her night club, the Green Mill, was closed just that much sooner than expected when police padlocked the doors after Leon Switzer had been shot and slightly wounded. He had gone to the club, police said, to collect rent from Harry Voiler, Tex's manager.

Voiler, according to the police's story as constructed from the evidence presented by Switzer, planned to close the Green Mill the end of this week. So Switzer, owner of the building, went to Voiler and demanded the rent up to April 1, the time when the lease expired. Voiler refused to pay and the shooting followed.

The shooting occurred as 800 persons shuffled to the blatting of the orchestra and felt paper snow balls as they were peppered against them by Texas and her "20 darlings."

Voiler and a man described as his body guard, Arthur Reed, were held by police for investigation. Switzer told the officers that the two men had taken him upstairs and then suddenly he felt a bullet. Two more pieces of lead struck him before he was able to stagger down the stairs and out of the club, Switzer said. He identified Voiler and Reed as two of the three men who did the shooting. The other man, Switzer said, he could not identify because he was suffering from the pain of the bullet wounds when he saw him.

Police hauled Texas down to the station along with her manager and his body guard. Texas offered to type out her record for the police. "I usually make them for talking machine companies and get paid for them," she told the sergeant. But the sergeant wouldn't even let her do it for him free.

When she was released she answered the query of "Where can we find you should we need you for testimony in connection with the shooting?" Texas told them, "Any court room in New York."

In ordering the Green Mill closed, police said it was one of the dampest and roughest cabarets in Chicago, "long before Texas came here last fall, and got even worse after she came."

GRAIN CORPORATION TO ASK AID OF THE FARM BOARD

Minneapolis, March 24.—(U.P.)—Harry A. Feltus, general manager of the Co-operative Farmers Northwest Grain corporation, today said the organization would ask the support of the federal farm board when 100 more elevators have been enlisted.

He said that 300 member elevators had joined since last fall when the group was organized. Feltus said he expected to have the 400 members by May and then ask recognition by the farm board.

SUIT FILED TO HALT $900,000,000 OIL FIRMS MERGER

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FILES SUIT IN FEDERAL COURT AT ST. LOUIS

CHARGES MERGER WOULD VIOLATE AN ANTI-TRUST DECREE OF 19 YEARS AGO

St. Louis, Mo., March 24.—(U.P.)—A suit was filed in federal court here today by the department of justice asking that the proposed $900,000,000 merger of the Standard Oil Co. of New York and the Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., be declared illegal.

The suit charged the merger would violate an anti-trust decree handed down 19 years ago, that virtually dissolved what was known as the Standard Oil "empire."

The petition alleged that the merger would violate the dissolution decree, asked that contracts in connection with the plan be declared null and void, that both companies be enjoined from calling meetings of stockholders to vote on the merger, and that costs of the present legal action be paid by the defendants.

The legal action begun here today followed announcement on February 24 by Attorney General Mitchell that he had decided on such a test case after attorneys for the two companies had asked for an expression of views of the department as to the legality of the merger.

Merger of the two companies would create a new company to be known as the General Petroleum Corporation, which would be second in size only to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The dissolution decree of 1911 recited in the papers filed climaxed a series of legal moves that started when Theodore Roosevelt, as president, began his trust busting campaign.

Three circuit court judges handed down the decree which enjoined and prohibited officers and directors of Standard Oil from entering any combinations in restraint of trade. More than 40 oil refining and pipe line companies were named, and among the individual defendants were such figures in the oil world as John D. and William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler and John D. Archbold.

Up to that time the two companies figuring in the present case were subsidiaries of the Standard of New Jersey, which was dissolved by the decree.

SPECTACULAR FIRE STARTS FROM MATCH STOCKS

$150,000 DAMAGE TO VAN PAPER SUPPLY COMPANY OF ST. PAUL

5 FIRE ENGINES RESPONDED TO GENERAL ALARM THAT WAS SOUNDED

St. Paul, March 24.—(U.P.)—A spectacular fire started from explosion of match stocks caused an estimated $150,000 damage to the Van Paper Supply Company this afternoon.

Matches handled by the concern were stored in the basement where they ignited and then exploded the remainder of the stock in storage. The flames soon spread through the block-long plant and did $25,000 to the building and the rest of the estimated damage was to stock.

Employees from the one-story building escaped unharmful, but the fire spread rapidly and less than half an hour after the fire was discovered, the plant's roof had collapsed and the entire interior was ablaze.

Hundreds of spectators were attracted to the fire as flames shot high into the air and dense smoke was wafted over the loop area during the noon lunch hour.

E. Bakula, a stockman, discovered the fire just before the matches exploded. The alarm he turned in soon was followed by special calls for apparatus.

Five fire engine companies responded to the alarm.

4 MEN KILLED IN GUN FIGHTS WITH POLICE

TWO BATTLES IN BUFFALO, N. Y., ONE DEAD IDENTIFIED AS SLAYER OF PATROLMAN

5TH MAN ESCAPES FROM HOSPITAL WHERE HE WAS TO BE OPERATED ON

Buffalo, March 24.—(U.P.)—As a result of two gun battles with police, four men were dead today, and one, wounded, had escaped from a hospital.

The dead are Walter Krajewski, 21, identified as the slayer of Patrolman Carl Wunderlich, 32, shot recently while frustrating a holdup; Henry Piotrowski, 20; John Dzadzzyński, 20; and Edward Domkiewicz, 17.

The fifth man, taken to a hospital unconscious and suffering from a head wound, escaped from the operating table down a fire escape when officers and hospital attaches left the room momentarily.

Washington, March 24.—(U.P.)—Gov. Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin called at the White House today to pay his respects to President Hoover. He said he was en route to Wisconsin from Florida, where he has been recuperating from an operation.

'CLASS ENEMIES' OF SOVIETS ARE REJOICING TODAY

RESTRICTIONS REMOVED WHICH FOR YEARS HAD OSTRACIZED THEM

PRACTICALLY EVERY RIGHT OF COMMUNIST CITIZENSHIP RESTORED TO "NON-TOILERS"

By EUGENE LYONS (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Moscow, March 24.—Millions of "class enemies" of the Soviets rejoiced today at the removal of restrictions which for years have set them apart, despised, ostracized and deprived of human rights.

In the important social decree of recent years, the central executive committee has ordered practically every right of communist citizenship—except the franchise—restored to the "non-toilers," which include remnants of the former ruling class, priests, private traders, "kulaks" (property-owning farmers) and other disfranchised elements.

The decree is regarded as emphasizing the demand for Joseph Stalin for a change in methods and the elimination of force and terrorization as a means of furthering the Soviet's program, the main objective of the government—suppression of the kulaks and collectivization of industry and agriculture—is in no way altered.

The lot of the "class enemies" still will be hard. The decree did not remove one of the most serious disabilities against this part of Russia's population, which is exclusion from the trade unions, through which they were prevented from obtaining work. But in many other ways, the decree gives evidence of the Kremlin's insistence upon humanizing its political campaigns.

The decree provides that loss of the franchise shall not carry with it such disabilities as expulsion from homes, denial of food rations and medical aid, exclusion of children from the benefits of education, and scores of other oppressive regulations.

The disfranchised citizens may appeal for restoration of their rights, and pending a final decision, may enjoy those rights, excepting only permission to vote. Meanwhile, a special investigating commission will study the lists of non-voters throughout the union and the conditions in which they are living today.

To eliminate widespread abuse of power by local officials the decree specified that only special election boards shall have the right to deprive a citizen of the vote. Other organizations which have taken this right upon themselves must desist.

Children of parents who are disfranchised, if more than 23 years old, will not share the disfranchisement of their elders.

Seek to Halt the Modern Woodmen from Writing New Business

St. Paul, March 24.—(U.P.)—Immediate action on a petition asking an order to halt the Modern Woodmen from writing new insurance in Minnesota was to be demanded late today of Garfield W. Brown, state insurance commissioner.

Brown already has under advisement this petition. A meeting of members of the organization Sunday voted to instruct a special committee to wait on Brown today and demand immediate action.

According to C. L. Sundean, Minneapolis, 65 policy holders who have changed their old policies for new ones, will request Brown to take steps to have their old policies returned to them.

Bill to Regulate Motor Bus Lines Passed by House

Washington, March 24.—(U.P.)—A bill authorizing the Interstate Commerce commission to regulate motor bus lines was passed today by the house. It would effect every bus line operating across state lines.

TO COME AFTER SIX MONTHS OF DRASTIC REVISION

ONLY FINAL DEBATE REMAINS BEFORE THE VOTE IS TAKEN TODAY

FATE OF BILL IN UPPER HOUSE SHOULD BE KNOWN BEFORE NIGHT

Washington, March 24.—(U.P.)—The senate opened the way for a final vote on the tariff bill today by defeating a motion of Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, to send the bill back to committee for elimination of all rate increases except those for agriculture.

Defeat of this motion, which would have stripped the bill of all industrial increases, forecast early passage of the measure as it stands. This was the only motion pending before the final vote.

This was the third time the senate had defeated such a motion. Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, lost a similar motion by one vote at the outset of consideration of the measure, and Thomas' motion was defeated once previously.

The motion to recommit was overwhelmingly defeated, 9 to 70.

Six democrats and three republicans senators from the west cast their votes in favor of sidetracking the bill. The democrats were Blease, South Carolina; Caraway, Arkansas; Smith, South Carolina; Thomas, Oklahoma; Walsh and Wheeler, Montana. The republicans were McMaster, South Dakota; Nye, North Dakota, and Fline, Oklahoma.

The vote was not a complete test of the bill itself for many westerners who intend to vote against the bill refused to support the Thomas motion for various reasons.

Washington, March 24.—(U.P.)—After six months of drastic revision, the tariff bill was ready for final vote in the senate today.

Only final debate remains before that vote is taken and, unless too much time is taken by senators in discussing the measure as a whole, the fate of the bill in the senate should be known before night.

Republican Floor Leader Watson has indicated he will attempt to keep the senate in session tonight until the vote is registered unless the bill is completed before that time. There was still a chance the debate might continue until tomorrow.

Observers are confident the bill will be passed although every senator has some objection to some part of it. Most of these, however, feel the benefits of the new bill will more than offset its advantages, it is believed, and will cast their vote for the measure. Majority leaders are predicting that not more than 20 or 30 votes will oppose passage.

Nevertheless there are some on both sides who are planning a thorough airing of their sentiments about the bill as a whole, and important debate is scheduled before the final vote, for the farm group senators, Borah, republican, Idaho; Norris, republican, Nebraska, and LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, are scheduled to talk. For the democrats, Senator Barley, democrat, Kentucky, and Harrison, Mississippi, are to propound the minority theory.

But the issue of agriculture vs. industry will go beyond talking and be forced to a vote on the Thomas motion to send the bill back to the non-voting committee except those relating to agriculture. The motion was made by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, on the theory the bill was to have been primarily for agricultural relief and has grown out of bounds.

When the same issue was presented last spring, industry won by one vote. Since then, however, many senators who voted for agriculture have received protective rate increases. A check of the democrats over the week end indicated only 19 would vote with Thomas. Only a dozen farm bloc votes are indicated in favor of the proposal. Leaders predict the motion will be defeated because it can poll only about a total of 31 votes.

The nomination of John J. Parker, of North Carolina, to the supreme court, was before the senate judiciary committee today and was expected to be referred to a sub-committee for further consideration.

The house was to vote on the bill to regulate interstate motor bus traffic which has been under discussion for the past two weeks.

HALT $900,000,000
OIL FIRMS MERGERDEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FILES
SUIT IN FEDERAL COURT
AT ST. LOUISCHARGES MERGER WOULD VIOLATE AN ANTI-TRUST DECREE
OF 19 YEARS AGO

St. Louis, Mo., March 24.—(U.P.)—Suit was filed in federal court here today by the department of justice asking that the proposed $900,000,000 merger of the Standard Oil Co. of New York and the Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., be declared illegal.

The suit charged the merger would violate an anti-trust decree handed down 19 years ago, that virtually dissolved what was known as the Standard Oil "empire."

The petition alleged that the merger would violate the dissolution decree, asked that contracts in connection with the plan be declared null and void, that both companies be enjoined from calling meetings of stockholders to vote on the merger, and that costs of the present legal action be paid by the defendants.

The legal action begun here today followed announcement on February 24 by Attorney General Mitchell that he had decided on such a test case after attorneys for the two companies had asked for an expression of views of the department as to the legality of the merger.

Merger of the two companies would create a new company to be known as the General Petroleum Corporation, which would be second in size only to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The dissolution decree of 1911 recited in the papers filed climaxed a series of legal moves that started when Theodore Roosevelt, as president, began his trust busting campaign.

Three circuit court judges handed down the decree which enjoined and prohibited officers and directors of Standard Oil from entering any combinations in restraint of trade. More than 40 oil refining and pipe line companies were named, and among the individual defendants were such figures in the oil world as John D. and William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler and John D. Archbold.

Up to that time the two companies figuring in the present case were subsidiaries of the Standard of New Jersey, which was dissolved by the decree.

SPECTACULAR FIRE
STARTS FROM
MATCH STOCKS$150,000 DAMAGE TO VAN PAPER SUPPLY COMPANY OF
ST. PAUL5 FIRE ENGINES RESPONDED TO GENERAL ALARM THAT WAS SOUNDED

St. Paul, March 24.—(U.P.)—A spectacular fire started from explosion of match stocks caused an estimated $150,000 damage to the Van Paper Supply Company this afternoon. Matches handled by the concern were stored in the basement where they ignited and then exploded the remainder of the stock in storage. The flames soon spread through the block-long plant and did $25,000 to the building and the rest of the estimated damage was to stock.

Employees from the one-story building escaped unharmed, but the fire spread rapidly and less than half an hour after the fire was discovered, the plant's roof had collapsed and the entire interior was ablaze.

Hundreds of spectators were attracted to the fire as flames shot high into the air and dense smoke was wafted over the loop area during the noon lunch hour.

E. Bakula, a stockman, discovered the fire just before the matches exploded. The alarm he turned in soon was followed by special calls for apparatus.

Five fire engine companies responded to the alarm.

'CLASS ENEMIES' OF SOVIETS ARE REJOICING TODAYRESTRICTIONS REMOVED WHICH FOR YEARS HAD OSTRACIZED THEMPRACTICALLY EVERY RIGHT OF COMMUNIST CITIZENSHIP RE-
STORED TO "NON-TOLLERS"By EUGENE LYONS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Moscow, March 24.—Millions of hitherto cruelly suppressed "class enemies" of the Soviets rejoiced today at the removal of restrictions which for years have set them apart, despised, ostracized and deprived of human rights.

In the important social decree of recent years, the central executive committee has ordered practically every right of communist citizenship—except the franchise—restored to the "non-tollers," which include remnants of the former ruling class, priests, private traders, "kulaks" (property-owning farmers) and other disfranchised elements.

The decree is regarded as emphasizing the demand for Joseph Stalin for a change in methods and the elimination of force and terrorization as a means of furthering the Soviet's program, the main objective of the government—suppression of the kulaks and collectivization of industry and agriculture—is in no way altered.

The lot of the "class enemies" still will be hard. The decree did not remove one of the most serious disabilities against this part of Russia's population, which is exclusion from the trade unions, through which they were prevented from obtaining work. But in many other ways, the decree gives evidence of the Kremlin's insistence upon humanizing its political campaigns.

The decree provides that loss of the franchise shall not carry with it such disabilities as expulsion from homes, denial of food rations and medical aid, exclusion of children from the benefits of education, and scores of other oppressive regulations.

The disfranchised citizens may appeal for restoration of their rights, and pending a final decision, may enjoy those rights, excepting only permission to vote. Meanwhile, a special investigating commission will study the lists of non-voters throughout the union and the conditions in which they are living today.

To eliminate widespread abuse of power by local officials the decree specified that only special election boards shall have the right to deprive a citizen of the vote. Other organizations which have taken this right upon themselves must desist.

Children of parents who are disfranchised, if more than 23 years old, will not share the disfranchisement of their elders.

Seek to Halt the Modern Woodmen from
Writing New Business

St. Paul, March 24.—(U.P.)—Immediate action on a petition asking an order to halt the Modern Woodmen from writing new insurance in Minnesota was to be demanded late today of Garfield W. Brown, state insurance commissioner.

Brown already has under advisement this petition. A meeting of members of the organization Sunday voted to instruct a special committee to wait on Brown today and demand immediate action.

According to C. L. Sundean, Minneapolis, 65 policy holders who have changed their old policies for new ones, will request Brown to take steps to have their old policies returned to them.

Bill to Regulate Motor Bus
Lines Passed by House

Washington, March 24.—(U.P.)—A bill authorizing the Interstate Commerce commission to regulate motor bus lines was passed today by the house. It would effect every bus line operating across state lines.

TO COME AFTER SIX MONTHS OF
DRASTIC REVISIONONLY FINAL DEBATE REMAINS
BEFORE THE VOTE IS TAKEN TODAYFATE OF BILL IN UPPER HOUSE
SHOULD BE KNOWN BE-FORE NIGHT

Washington, March 24.—(U.P.)—The senate opened the way for a final vote on the tariff bill today by selecting a motion of Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, to send the bill back to committee for elimination of all rate increases except those for agriculture.

Defeat of this motion, which would have stripped the bill of all industrial increases, forecast early passage of the measure as it stands. This was the only motion pending before the final vote.

This was the third time the senate had defeated such a motion. Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, lost a similar motion by one vote at the outset of consideration of the measure, and Thomas' motion was defeated once previously.

The motion to recommit was overwhelmingly defeated, 9 to 75.

Six democrats and three republican senators from the west cast their votes in favor of sidetracking the bill. The democrats were Blaine, South Carolina; Caraway, Arkansas; Smith, South Carolina; Thomas, Oklahoma; Walsh and Wheeler, Montana. The republicans were McAllister, South Dakota; Nye, North Dakota, and Fink, Oklahoma.

The vote was not a complete test of the bill itself for many westerners who intend to vote against the bill refused to support the Thomas motion for various reasons.

Washington, March 24.—(U.P.)—After six months of drastic revision, the tariff bill was ready for final vote in the senate today.

Only final debate remains before that vote is taken and, unless too much time is taken by senators in discussing the measure as a whole, the fate of the bill in the senate should be known before night.

Republican Floor Leader Watson has indicated he will attempt to keep the senate in session tonight until the vote is registered unless the bill is completed before that time. There was still a chance the debate might continue until tomorrow.

Observers are confident the bill will be passed although every senator has some objection to some part of it. Most of these, however, feel the benefits of the new bill will more than offset its advantages, it is believed, and will cast their vote for the measure. Majority leaders are predicting that not more than 20 or 30 votes will oppose passage.

Nevertheless there are some on both sides who are planning a thorough airing of their sentiments about the bill as a whole, and important debate is scheduled before the final vote, for the farm group senators, Borah, republican, Idaho; Norris, republican, Nebraska, and LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, are scheduled to talk. For the democrats, Senator Bailey, democrat, Kentucky, and Harrison, Mississippi, are to propound the minority theory.

But the issue of agriculture vs. industry will go beyond talking and be forced to a vote on the Thomas motion to send the entire bill back to the schedules committee except those relating to agriculture. The motion was made by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, on the theory the bill was to have been primarily for agricultural relief and has grown out of bounds.

When the same issue was presented last spring, industry won by one vote. Since then, however, many senators who voted for agriculture have received protective rate increases. A check of the democrats over the week end indicated only 19 would vote with Thomas. Only a dozen farm bloc votes are indicated in favor of the proposal. Leaders predict the motion will be defeated because it can poll only about a total of 31 votes.

The nomination of John J. Parker, of North Carolina, to the supreme court, was before the senate judiciary committee today and was expected to be referred to a sub-committee for further consideration.

The house was to vote on the bill to regulate interstate motor bus traffic which has been under discussion for the past two weeks.

SIBLEY

Miss Myrtle Cooper and Luverne Gustafson motored to St. Cloud Friday evening. They returned Sunday evening in a new Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Oas, Miss Gladys Oas and Arthur Moberg were Sunday dinner guests at the Ole Oas home in Maple township.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moberg and son arrived Wednesday from Duluth where Mr. Moberg has been employed for some time. He has purchased his father's farm south of Pequot where they are now settled to take over the place.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moberg will also live on their son's farm and expect to build as soon as the weather permits. C. A. Reiter was a caller at the Orville Oas home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Erickson were Sunday visitors at the Nels Evenson home.

Bergie Johnson of St. Cloud made a short call at the W. H. Cooper home Saturday evening.

Ernest Enes, Mr. Cooper, Orville Oas and Mr. Rasmussen helped Mr. Norem saw wood Wednesday. Mrs. Rasmussen also spent the day with Mrs. Norem.

Miss Myrtle Cooper is a proud owner of a new Ford.

Eric Erickson and son of Brainerd made a call Saturday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Erickson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Enes, Mr. and Mrs. N. Evenson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Knut Erickson and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Oas were among those who attended the funeral of Mr. Clarquist held at the Norwegian Lutheran church at Pequot Saturday. We all share our sympathy for the bereaved family and relatives.

Mrs. H. W. Cooper and daughter Myrtle, Mrs. Orville Oas and Miss Olive Jones motored to Brainerd Tuesday afternoon. Miss Cooper and Miss Jones had dental work done. They also stayed for the evening and took in the movie at the new Paramount theatre.

Mrs. Oscar Olson and Mrs. Ed. Erickson entertained the Sibley ladies aid Thursday afternoon of last week. A large crowd attended the aid and after the business meeting a delicious lunch was served. The committee—Mr. Hall, superintendent of the Pequot school, Mr. Gustafson and J. B. Enes—brought before the president and members of the aid the question of whether a dinner or lunch would be served for a community gathering held at Pequot. This they all willingly took part in and it was decided the aid would serve their dinner at a banquet given Monday evening. This community affair will be held Monday and Tuesday. There will be a speaker and other numbers on the program. Help boost for your community.

Arthur Moberg has been helping his brother-in-law, Gaylord Wass, the past few days.

Miss Margaret Reiter attended the pie social given at the Woodmen hall by the Royal Neighbors Saturday evening.

Food Sale

The ladies aid of the Bethlehem Lutheran church will hold a food sale Saturday at O. D. Larson grocery, starting at 11 o'clock.

WEATHER UNKIND IN TRADE WEEK START

Snow and Cold Winds Almost Prohibitive of Large Attendance at Start of Sales Work

BETTER WEATHER COMING

Tuesday's Prediction is Fair With Rising Temperature, to Bring More People to Town

With everything set for an auspicious opening of Spring Trade Week in Brainerd, merchants donating 400 prizes and exhibiting their finest bargains, the weather man turned on snow and cold winds today and thus cooled the ardor of many from the country who had anticipated early participation in all the activities of Spring Trade Week.

The committee in charge, well knowing the vagaries of spring in Minnesota, very wisely made the Spring Trade good-will exposition of the merchants cover a full six days period. The weather report for tomorrow is fair with rising temperature. Stores of the city report the opening of the search for prizes, many shoppers being engaged in checking their numbers with those in the merchants' windows. The afternoon is expected to augment attendance as the wind and snow seemed to moderate.

Stores of the city are handsomely dressed and a large display of seasonable merchandise is on hand to interest the shoppers of Brainerd and vicinity.

One of the first prizes awarded was that of a free admission to Paramount theatre given Mrs. Frank Fuller, whose number matched one on display at the theatre.

Northeast Swamp Burns

Brush in the so-called Northeast Brainerd swamp at the end of A, B, and C streets burned Sunday afternoon, the Brainerd Fire Department answering an alarm to prevent its spread. There was little damage done by the fire.

With fire coming up from the hood, a Bollig Transportation truck was stopped on Laurel street at 10:30 a. m. Saturday and the fire department extinguished a small blaze in the air cleaner of the carburetor. The damage was light.

BANQUET PLANNED IN GUILD HALL

St. Francis Parochial School Alumni to Hold Reunion Here April 21

Alumni of the St. Francis parochial school, Brainerd, will gather at a banquet to talk over former school days April 21, at 6:30 p. m. according to plans announced today.

Reservations are to be made on or before April 7 and are to be made by paying the admission fee to Gertrude Remmels, Marie Erdman, Edward Burke, Margaret Meyers or the principal of the school.

"Anna Christie"

The ivory carved beauty which is Greta Garbo's and which in the days of the silent picture so effectively veiled her in mystery and, by so doing, made her the personification of the subtle allure of all beautiful women, now for the first time, comes magnificently to life through the emotional medium of her speaking voice. For this famous actress in her first all-talking picture, "Anna Christie," (the screen's adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's well known play) reveals through her voice the dramatic intensity, sympathy and understanding that only the voice can give to a portrayal. Although she has had no experience on the legitimate stage, which in the light of her remarkable performance is amazing, Miss Garbo's low, almost husky voice with its careful modulation and sense of timing, attributes to one of the most distinguished portrayals yet seen and heard on the screen. Audiences will find that a new Garbo makes her debut in "Anna Christie"; a new Garbo whose old fascination has been greatly enhanced by the additional factor of dialogue.

"Anna Christie" will be presented at the Paramount tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday.

High School Auditorium Rentals

THE school board after many ballots arrived at $65 as the figure for a night rental of the auditorium, when used commercially. That means that the auditorium is rented to an individual or organization proposing to sell tickets and to make money by using the auditorium. In the four ballots taken two of the members favored $50 rental, while five had expressed themselves as favoring $75. The general average of the first ballot was $66.50. Thereafter, in the following ballots, sentiment veered to $65 and in the last ballot the vote stood nine votes for $65 and one vote for $75. This shows that the $65 rental figure set is practically the unanimous expression of the board.

The rehearsal charge was set at $5. The matinee rental for commercial purposes was also set at $65.

In arriving at these rental figures, the board has done the best possible in order to protect many interests. Auditorium seats, stage fixtures, lighting fixtures, etc., are subject to depreciation and at some time in the future will have to be replaced. There is wear and tear, no matter how carefully things are handled.

All school activities, whether charged for or not, of course, get free use of the auditorium, as it is an essential part of any modern high school. There are many fixed charges, such as heat, lighting, ventilation, cleaning up after shows, etc., supervision of performances and stage, etc.

Educational and not money making purposes get free use of the auditorium, subject, of course, to the approval of the school board. One of these was that of the lecture on Russia as given by President Donald J. Cowling of Carleton college. Another is that of Dr. Alfred E. Koenig, president of the Inter-Racial Service Council, Minneapolis, who speaks tonight on "Immigrant Neighbors." Both lectures charged no admission, are educational in character and sponsored by the literary section of the Brainerd Musical club.

The $65 rental for the auditorium amounts to less than six and a half cents per seat. Folding chair rental in the city is usually set at $1 a dozen chairs. The bare operating cost of the auditorium, it is said, will average $35 per night. With increased use of the auditorium additional help will have to be hired, making further expense. The janitors are working at maximum capacity now without taking into consideration added labors caring for the auditorium.

Arriving at the $65 rental figure, the school board no doubt recognized the fact that the board had in the past paid $125 rental for the use of the Park opera house besides an additional amount directly to the stage hands for the use of the opera house for commencement exercises. Like amounts were paid for class plays. The old opera house seated approximately 700 while the auditorium seats 1010, all ground floor, with perfect view, good ventilation and lighting, and maintained in a pleasant and clean condition.

While it is believed that the theatre operators necessarily had an item of profit in this charge, it would seem that the charge made for the use of the auditorium is fair, considering the price and the accommodations offered and the fact that many Brainerd organizations made frequent use of the Park opera house for commercial purposes.

The interests of all the taxpayers are to be considered at all times. To give the auditorium free or below cost of operation, would cause the school board to run in competition with taxpayers of Brainerd who operate halls at a profit, being such halls as the U. C. T. auditorium, Iron Exchange hall, Moose hall, Scandia hall, etc. If the high school auditorium is operated below cost for commercial purposes, it would result in benefiting a comparatively few citizens at the expense of all the rest of the taxpayers.

To operate at bare cost of maintenance would leave no surplus to cover free use of the auditorium for educational purposes, such as the addresses of Dr. Cowling and Dr. Koenig. Naturally, the board would hesitate to ask for an increased amount of taxes for the operation of part of its school plant, not used for school purposes, when the needs of the school district demand improvements in the grade building conditions of the city which have long been neglected.

The board has named a committee, Louis Hohman, Elmer O. Olson and Mrs. J. A. Thabes, to formulate rules on the use of the auditorium.

It seems evident that the board is attempting to consider the interests of the community as a whole, rather than be influenced by the desires of special groups.

FOUR Minnesota papers will be edited this week by 16 students of journalism at the University of Minnesota. The students, working in teams of four, will edit, solicit the advertising and do everything connected with the publishing of a weekly paper except the actual setting of the type and printing of the paper. The papers will be visited during the week by Sam Haislet, field manager of the Minnesota Editorial association, and Bruce McCoy, acting head of the University School of Journalism.

NEARLY 400 applications for the Citizens Military Training camp at Fort Snelling, August 1 to 30, have been received by C. M. T. C. headquarters. The number of early applications indicate the camp will be filled to capacity at an early date and applications should be made immediately to insure accommodation, Col. E. M. Norton, chief of staff of the 88th division, said.

DR. ALFRED E. KOENIG, who speaks tonight at the high school auditorium, giving a free lecture entitled, "Immigrant Neighbors," is well known to many Brainerd people having heard him discuss European problems. He spoke of the Balkan countries at the Rotary club and addressed another gathering on the Turkey of today.

THE bee and honey industry in Minnesota has grown to occupy an important niche in the agricultural history of the state. Stabilized market conditions and the increasing use of honey as a food product are doing much to put the industry on a money making basis.

THE greater per cent of inmates in prisons today are there for offenses which were not crimes 50 years ago, according to Judge Richard D. O'Brien of the Ramsey county district court.

HOTEL improvements soon to be made at Paynesville will total more than $20,000.

Big kernels in small shells

In addition to the advertisements of the big department stores, of the grocery and hardware stores, of the millinery, clothing and shoe stores, there is another kind of advertising that is being read more and more by readers of this newspaper. That kind of advertising is the Classified Columns.

A man or woman wants a job. They read the "Help Wanted" columns and probably insert an advertisement of their own under "Positions Wanted." Employer and job seeker soon get together to the benefit of both. A man may want an automobile—possibly he cannot afford a new car, so he looks in the "For Sale" columns and finds just the car at the price he can afford to pay. Some one has lost a pocketbook, valuable papers or even a pet dog. The "Lost and Found" columns soon bring loser and finder together.

The Classified Columns are so arranged that any one can readily find what he seeks quickly—business news, machinery and tools, household goods, horses, dogs, cats, canaries, etc. They enable you to locate what you are looking for in short order. So in reading advertising do not overlook the classified columns—the individual advertisements do not take up much room, but like the meaty nut they may contain a big kernel in a small shell—just for you.

Read the advertisements for your own good... classified columns as well as display advertisements

In addition to the advertisements of the big department stores, of the grocery and hardware stores, of the millinery, clothing and shoe stores, there is another kind of advertising that is being read more and more by readers of this newspaper. That kind of advertising is the Classified Columns.

A man or woman wants a job. They read the "Help Wanted" columns and probably insert an advertisement of their own under "Positions Wanted." Employer and job seeker soon get together to the benefit of both. A man may want an automobile—possibly he cannot afford a new car, so he looks in the "For Sale" columns and finds just the car at the price he can afford to pay. Some one has lost a pocketbook, valuable papers or even a pet dog. The "Lost and Found" columns soon bring loser and finder together.

The Classified Columns are so arranged that any one can readily find what he seeks quickly—business news, machinery and tools, household goods, horses, dogs, cats, canaries, etc. They enable you to locate what you are looking for in short order. So in reading advertising do not overlook the classified columns—the individual advertisements do not take up much room, but like the meaty nut they may contain a big kernel in a small shell—just for you.

New York, March 24.—The first surprise of the 1930 baseball season is furnished by the lowly Boston Braves.

Regarded as the weakest of major league teams, the Braves today boasted of the best record of any of the sixteen clubs against major league opposition.

The Braves have won eight out of 11 games, including five victories over the New York Yankees and one victory each over the Philadelphia Athletics, St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Robins. By winning five out of eight games from the Yankees, the Braves clinched the championship of St. Petersburg, training camp, of both teams. The Braves and Yankees have one more game to play.

Bill McKee, new leader of the Braves, carried south a strange collection of misfits and cast-offs which has been whipped into a hard-fighting aggregation. It will be remembered that the Braves started strong last spring, leading the National League for a week or so, but finally collapsed and finished in the cellar.

4 NEW TEAMS
AMONG 1ST TEN
IN TWIN EVENT

LEADING PROCESSION AT CLEVELAND ARE MATAK AND MITCHELL, ST. PAUL

MAKE TOTAL OF 1309. MATAK CONSIDERED GREATEST SOUTHPAW BOWLER

Cleveland, O., March 24.—High marks in the doubles event featured yesterday's rolling in the American Bowling Congress, the close of the day finding four new teams among the first ten in the twin event.

Leading the procession, Emil Matak and Jimmy Mitchell, St. Paul, Minn., topped the pins for a total of 1309 and took the lead in this division. Matak, considered the nation's greatest southpaw bowler, and Mitchell, rated in the country's leading straight-ball performer, have been high in the money at previous A. B. C. meets and their showing was not unexpected.

Chicago bowlers held the spotlight in the other doubles changes of the day. G. Geiser and L. Lellinger came within three points of the St. Paul leaders and baged second place with 1306. R. Pekie and G. Moltz followed close behind with a total of 1304 for third and two more Windy City rollers, A. Heim and A. Carlson pulled into fifth position with a score of 1283.

Eleven states will be represented among the 62 teams scheduled to take the alleys today. Ohio, West Virginia, New York, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana, New Jersey, Illinois and Georgia bowlers will appear.

Although the Italian giant says he is ready for Dempsey, Sharkey, Stribling or "anybody," his managers said that a movie offer of such magnitude as to make them consider cancellation of six fights in western cities, has been made.

VICTORIAN WINS
AGUA CALIENTE
$100,000 RACE

EXCITED CROWD OF 25,000 SEES
WORLD'S RICHEST RACING EVENT

AIRPLANES AND SPECIAL TRAIN
BROUGHT MANY VISITORS FROM LOS ANGELES

Agua Caliente, Mex., March 24.—(U.P.)—Only a few stragglers remained today at the track where an excited crowd of 25,000 persons watched Victorian cross the line to win the first $100,000 Agua Caliente handicap—the world's richest racing event.

Improved airplane service and a special train from Los Angeles carried most of the visitors away late yesterday at the close of the 14-event racing program.

The rich handicap was the 12th event and with a field of 14 starting, the total stake was $124,600.

Victorian, 5-year-old son of Whiskbroom II, set a new track record for the Agua Caliente course by running the mile and a quarter in two minutes, three and one-fifths seconds.

His victory was worth $108,400 to the Warm stable, including a $5,000 gift to Jockey George Ellis and a similar sum for Victorian's trainer, T. J. Taylor.

Two lengths behind the winner raced Alexander Pantages, entered by the Carrodio stable. Donhay, from the Ranecoc stable, came in third, and W. C. and E. W. Richert's May Dandy was fourth.

Agua Caliente, Mex., March 24.—Among those who today thumbed over their winnings from the Agua Caliente $100,000 handicap was Ed Fisher, a Butte, Mont., miner, holder of the sweepstakes ticket on Victorian.

Fisher was paid $51,758 on his ticket after Victorina flashed across the tape a winner.

The miner had insured some profit on the ticket by selling a share to Harry Fink for $5,000 and another part to Bert Baroni. Fisher received $32,000, however.

CHISHOLM AMONG
WINNERS AT MEET
IN EVANSTON, ILL.

Evanston, Ill., March 24.—(U.P.)—Frobel high school of Gary, Ind., and prep athletes from Tulsa, Okla., and Chisholm, Minn., today held the titles of Northwestern university's three annual indoor interscholastic tournaments.

The Hoosiers won the track title from Oak Park, Ill., high school, winner of the title last year, while Chisholm replaced Dea Plains, Ill., as swimming champion. Tulsa had an easy time annexing the wrestling honors.

Among "The Spoilers"

By HARDIN BURNLEY

RICKARD certainly was right when he called Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavy, "The Spoiler," because that bounding baker boy was wont to outslug a promising rival just as the latter seemed groomed for a championship match. He did that with Delaney, Stribling, Sharkey, and one or two others just as they were about ready for "the big shot." Johnny didn't knock them out, but win or lose—he temporarily halted their title marches, keeping Sharkey from a crack at Champion Gene Tunney, etc., etc.

Risko's latest "spoiler" stunt was to whip Vittorio Campolo in their 10-rounder at Miami last February. But Johnny didn't get the decision. Referee Kid McPartland called it a draw to the unanimous amazement of ringside scribes and the crowd.

Tonight, Risko and Campolo have been scheduled to meet in another 10-round bout, this time in New York's Garden. Now certain officials of the latter institution have a decided interest in the big Argentine's future. Some dream of a rich gate to be lured by a future Campolo-Carnera man-mountain clash. Will Risko spoil those golden hopes?

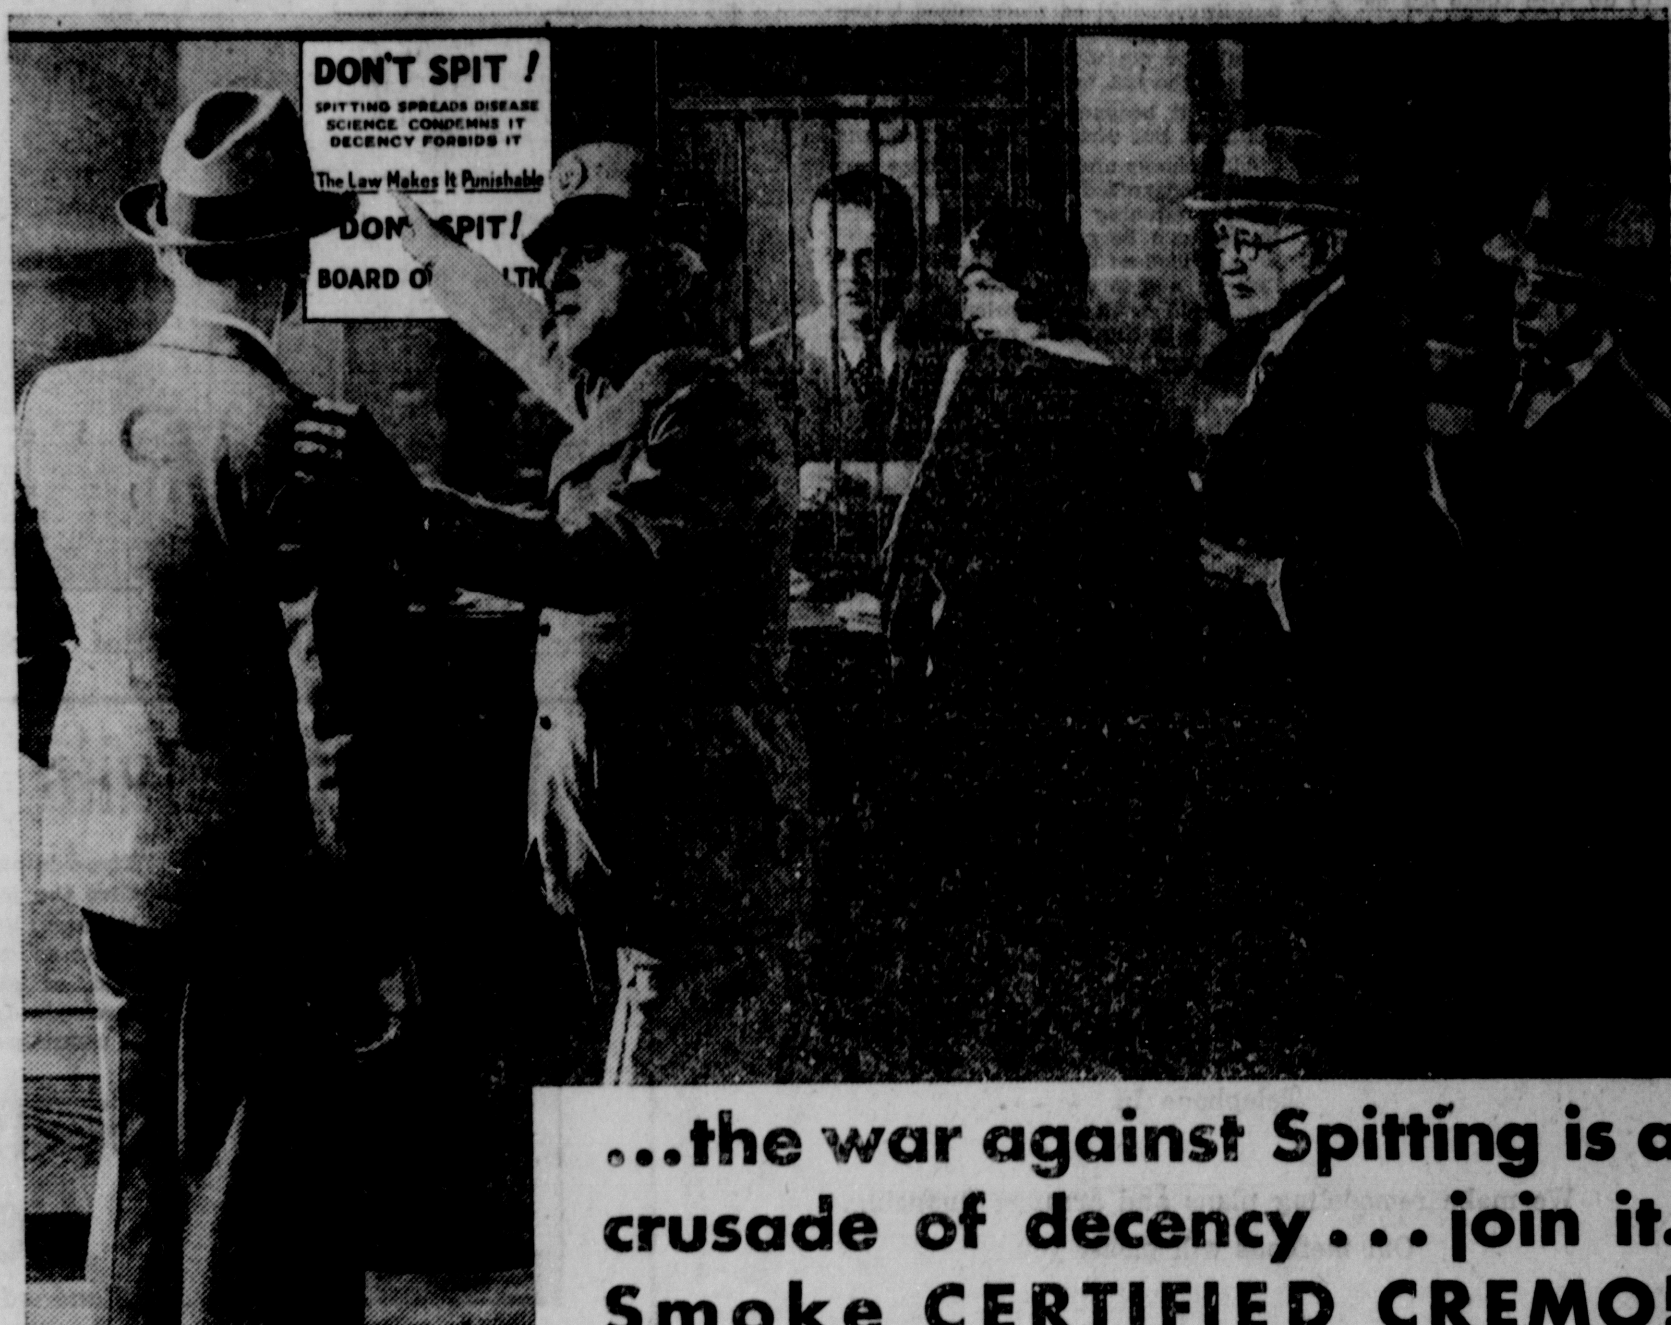

Of course, it's figured that all Campolo needs is experience. He has a truly terrific right-hand wallop, and is burning up to prove that he can trounce Risko.

Originally, William Muldoon, 35-year-old boss of New York boxing, refused to permit a Risko-Campolo fight because the Argentine gaucho is much the larger of the twain. Johnny is about 5-foot-10; Vittorio, 6-foot-7. Risko weighs about 188; Campolo, about 230. Despite those disparities, they battled warmly in their recent clash. Risko won at least seven rounds quite clearly and was never even woozy from the giant's hardest smashes.

In the lighter classes, Ace Hudkins, Stan Loayza, and Bud Taylor have often played Risko's "spoiler" role in thwarting likely title prospects. Only the best get by 'em!

In New York Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

...the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency... join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

Hating "spit" as you do, wouldn't you be horrified if you suddenly discovered that the cigar you smoked was rolled by filthy fingers—and tipped with spit? And just think... more than half of all cigars made in this country are made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Why take chances? Smoke Certified Cremo and protect yourself against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof... immaculate... foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said, "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

Neun, Moore, Berger and Rhie are making their debuts with the Braves. Neun, who formerly was with the Detroit Tigers, promises to beat George Sisker out of the first base job.

Moore and Berger, however, are the two sensations in the Braves' line-up. Moore, who led the Texas League in batting last season, came to the Braves as an outfielder, but has been made over into third baseman. His hitting has been nothing short of spectacular. Berger, the big Los Angeles outfielder, has rounded out the Braves' outfield. Rhie was bought last week from Brooklyn.

The best pitching has been supplied by Johnny Cooney, Ed Brandt and Socks Seibold.

The only three other major league clubs which have won more games than they have lost in inter-league opposition are the Chicago White Sox, Detroit Tigers and Brooklyn Robins. Records of all clubs in the 40 inter-league games played to date follow:

	W.	L.
Boston Braves	8	3
Brooklyn Robins	4	2
(x) Chicago White Sox	4	2

Rambling Old Mansions May Be Beautiful Modernized

MANY ROOMED HOUSES MADE INTO APARTMENTS

SMALL INVESTMENT OFTEN BRINGS BIG RETURNS

Back in the gay nineties the main method of displaying wealth was in the construction of many-roomed mansions which stood imposingly on the then prominent streets of the city. These ten or twelve roomed residences have long since fallen into the hands of the caretakers or diverted to other uses.

Many of these huge rambling houses are now idle. Although built of sound timbers in a thoroughly workman-like manner their value has depreciated because they are out of date in lines and appointments. Not only this, but their size precludes their being used by the average family. Few can afford to rent such a house and fewer still care to purchase a run-down mansion for their own use.

Built to Last

These old homes are strong and substantially built. Their timbers are sturdy and good for many a year. They were built to last. These dwellings should be giving active service and providing a definite monthly revenue.

When the owners abandon the old home for a newer, more modern house or an up-to-date apartment, the old home is cast on a dull market.

One of the problems that confronts many real estate offices is the disposition of these old mansions. Is it better to recommend that they be torn down because of their lack of revenue-producing ability? Should they be sold for the value of the land upon which they stand? Or should they be modernized and put once more into active service?

One Solution of the Problem

What to do with these old obsolete looking houses was solved a short time ago by one real estate firm who interested a number of investors in the idea of purchasing the old property they were handling. The huge rambling three storied house was as sound as it was the day it was built, but the lines were Victorian and the accessories, such as the plumbing, lighting fixtures and heating plant, were obsolete. An architect was called into consultation and after an investigation he advised that the old structure be turned into an apartment building. Contractor's figures showed a cost that was astonishingly low.

The old building was modernized. When it finally emerged from the builder's hands it was up to date in every particular. Each apartment was immediately rented and today the building is producing a revenue that is sure.

The property is now worth about twice the original cost plus the investment in modernizing. The modernized building is one of the handsome structures on the street, a credit to the neighborhood.

Modernizing is Successful

The idea of transforming old buildings with many rooms into kitchenette apartments has usually worked out successfully, wherever it has been tried. It is the opinion of those who have studied this problem that the building should be modernized within and without. This transformation should be complete so that the identity of the old mansion is lost.

Thus it becomes, not a modernized mansion, but virtually a new building.

Old schools and office buildings have been modernized into satisfactory income producing apartments. Modernization can be applied to these buildings as well as the more humble dwelling on a side street. Size has nothing to do with modernization. The principle is the same, no matter what the size.

Radio Station Letters

The department of commerce says "W" and "K" radio station letters have no particular meaning. The alphabet has been divided. Certain letters have been assigned to certain countries. "W" and "K" are the United States letters. By having the first letter denote the country, it is not so difficult to locate the station.

Remodeling This Home Provided Extra Room

While many home owners change the lines of their dwellings primarily with the idea of making its appearance in keeping with the architectural practice of today, others have a strictly utilitarian motive in mind when they call in the contractor. Yet often these changes add immeasurably to the general appearance of the house.

The illustrations on this page show views of a house where definite alterations were made. Below is the house as the contractors arrived on the scene. To the right is the same residence when the remodeling was completed.

Little Changes

A close examination of these before and after views show that many of the exterior lines of the house remain the same. No changes have been made in the front porch or in the left wing or the house.

The roof has been raised so that the ridge is now level with the ridge running perpendicular to it. This change in the height of the roof necessitates lifting the ridge slightly to the right so that the eaves at the right now extend to the right elevation of the building.

A bay of three windows with sliding sash has been placed in the front gable. The slope of the right plane of the roof is now broken by a dormer with outswinging casements.

Below a side entry with a well-lighted vestibule may be noted in the view to the left. The roof lines have been extended to form a protection over this side-porch and vestibule.

A new cement walk extends from the public sidewalk along the garage drive to the new entrance.

Finishing Touches

During the summer months the house as completed is decked with awnings on its sunny side.

The owner also has set out shrubbery and flowers. These add considerably to the exterior appearance of a home and modernization is never completed until a certain amount of landscaping has been done.

Interior Changes Necessary

You can imagine the changes that have occurred on the inside of this house. While alterations are in progress the wise home owner is going to put in all of the little improvements that add so much to the completeness of the home. New electrical outlets, paneled walls, hardwood floors, and modern-appearing chandeliers give a hint of what is often needed in the living rooms.

In this instance the new room upstairs had to be completely furnished.

Teachers' Responsibility

"Think carefully on what you teach a child," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "lest he grow up to remember you as one who led him into saying what is not true."—Washington Star.

HOT WATER A YEAR ROUND REQUIREMENT

Many homes have hot water only during the winter months when the heating plant is in operation. During the rest of the year the occupants of the house have to put up with the old fashioned, obsolete methods.

Hot water throughout the house ready to gush forth from every tap is a necessity nowadays. Whether in the laundry, the kitchen or the bath, hot water is essential each day.

A good hot water heater should be installed in every home, for it should be unnecessary to have to wait until water is heated for use.

The selection of a heater depends upon a number of factors—the size of the house, the quantity of water needed and the speed with which the hot water is desired. An important element is safety—the heater must never explode nor endanger the house by fire.

Chestnut Trees

There is a Chinese hairy chestnut and a Japanese chestnut. The Chinese hairy chestnuts are being brought to this country in the hope that they will replace our chestnut trees which were destroyed by a blight. While the trees grow slowly and do not bear a good crop for about ten years, they are believed to be sturdier than the Japanese chestnuts, which bear in two or three years.

Rambling Old Mansions May Be Beautiful Modernized

MANY ROOMED HOUSES MADE INTO APARTMENTS

SMALL INVESTMENT OFTEN BRINGS BIG RETURNS

Back in the gay nineties the main method of displaying wealth was in the construction of many-roomed mansions which stood imposingly on the then prominent streets of the city. These ten or twelve roomed residences have long since fallen into the hands of the caretakers or diverted to other uses.

Many of these huge rambling houses are now idle. Although built of sound timbers in a thoroughly workman-like manner their value has depreciated because they are out of date in lines and appointments. ## PEQUOT PIONEER RITES TUESDAY

Funeral Services for Lawrence Nelson, 73, to be conducted at Pequot

SHOEMAKER BY TRADE

Leaves Seven Children; Mrs. Ralph Reid, Brainerd, is a Daughter

Lawrence Nelson of Pequot passed away Saturday evening at 8:45 o'clock at the St. Joseph's hospital. He had been ill for some time and complications set in which caused his death. He was 73 years old last October.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Norwegian Lutheran church at Pequot, Rev. O. O. Rem of that city officiating.

Mr. Nelson was born in Christiania, Norway, October 25, 1856 and was married November 2, 1881. In 1887 they moved to Pequot, Minn., where they resided several years. In 1900 he moved to Pequot and has made his home there for the past 30 years. Mrs. Nelson passed away May 25, 1899 at Stillwater.

Seven children are left to mourn his passing, Norman Nelson of Alameda, Calif., Rudolph Nelson of Oakland, Calif., Mrs. Mike Falkama of Royal, Ia., Lawrence Nelson of Kansas City, Mo., Morris Nelson of Troy, Mont., Mrs. George Hunter of Pine River and Mrs. Ralph Reid of Brainerd. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Chris Johnson of Jenkins and a brother, Theodore Nelson also of Jenkins, and 16 grandchildren.

Mr. Nelson was one of the pioneers at Pequot. He was a shoemaker by trade. He is well known in Brainerd having visited here a number of times.

ADDS RESPECTS TO FRED GRUENHAGEN

Rev. Wm. J. Lowrie, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Windom, Minn., and former pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Brainerd, adds his respects today to the memory of the late F. H. Gruenhagen, explaining "We were friends for so many years that his death is a real grief of mind to me."

Rev. Lowrie's eulogy to Mr. Gruenhagen as received today by the Brainerd Dispatch follows:

"As a friend and neighbor of Fred Gruenhagen for 12 years I wish to write a little appreciation of his acquaintanceship during those years."

"I admired him for his devotion to business, and for the qualities that made for success in his business affairs. He was interested in the prosperity of the city in which he lived and had faith in its future. The fine business enterprises he created and sponsored testify to that faith."

"However there is another monument to his name I wish to mention and which may not generally be recalled to memory and that is the church, the Zion Lutheran Evangelical church, on Main and Eighth streets, of which he was a member for so many years."

"That church stands as a testimonial to his interest and support of churchly things. It was through his help with others that that church has its new building and was enabled to continue through the earlier years of my acquaintance with it."

"For it he made his sacrifice of time and money and took these out from a busy life that had many demands made upon it for thought and attention. It is this feature of his activities that commends itself to me as a fine virtue. He set an example of steadfastness in setting apart a portion of his time for the church and its kingdom, and this must abide as an enduring tribute to his name."

"In conversation with me at times he expressed his interest there and told how his church was getting on. Above all the hurry and stress of the times he had the conviction that the spiritual things of the church are the things that endure, and to this he set his seal by his attendance and support of it."

"I will miss him when I come to Brainerd for for years I watched him pass my home on South Eighth street, going and returning from his work. Human footsteps falter and fail at last. God's footsteps go on forever past."

DR. KOENIG TO TALK AT SCHOOL TONIGHT

Dr. Alfred E. Koenig, of Minneapolis, president of the Inter-Racial Service Council, will discuss problems confronting the immigrants on their arrival in this country in his talk "Immigrant Neighbors" at the Washington high school auditorium this evening at 8 o'clock.

Ideals Of Service

Perhaps the conception we have of our profession is idealistic. Appropriate service when it is needed most; the best of everything offered in a spirit of sympathy and understanding; these things constitute the conception we have of our work. Idealistic, they may be, but satisfying.

AUXILIARY BAND MUSICAL REVIEW

Legion Auxiliary Band Prepares Interesting Program for Monday Evening, March 31

At the musical revue which will be presented by the American Legion Auxiliary band at its concert next Monday evening, March 31, at the high school auditorium, Frances Hartman Paine will give a comedy duet and dialogue entitled "Uncle Tom and Little Eva." The idea for this act is entirely original for as well as writing the dialogue, she wrote the poem for the song. Music and orchestration were composed by Miss Effie Drexler, director of the band. Brainerd audiences are assured of a hearty laugh whenever "Frau" Paine appears as her comedy sketches never fail to please.

Marcella Holm and the little girls chorus will sing "In My Sweet Little Alice Blue Gown." They will wear pantalettes, bouffant gowns and poke bonnets of alic blue.

A chorus of 18 boys attired in patriotic costumes and carrying canes will sing "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy."

The "Yankee Doodle" boys are: Vergil Anderson, Eugene Avery, Warren Babcock, Fritz Bierhaus, Gene Bierhaus, Raymond Brusseau, Oden Christianson, Paul Fallquist, Arthur Gattis, Roger Holden, Ralph Johnson, Ralph Larson, Robert Olson, Robert Preston, Clair Sinclair, Charles Stevens, Donald Whiting, Marvin Williams.

"Alice Blue Gown" girls are: Marcella Holm, soloist, Beverly Britton, Ilene Divon, Jean Hagberg, Alice Herrmann, Ruth Hoerner, Edith Johnson, Kathleen Kinsmiller, Esther Ley, Martha Ludlow, Marion McCulloch, Berneice Nelson, Jessie Noggie, Marlene Olson, Bettie Jane Paine, Jean Peterson, Mabel Picard, Eileen Rosko, Ethel Volki.

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CAPTER XXXVIII.

But how can you do anything without Government protection?" she asked. "I thought that was the essence of the whole thing."

"So it is to a point. But I've learned a thing or two in that office of mine—about comitadj amongst other things. There are little bands of cut-throats, of three or four men, all over this wretched country as well as all over this city. They don't exist as a problem."

"There are about three bands that matter, and the chief one, which is about a hundred fighting men strong, is under a fellow called Stephanos. He doesn't seem to have a surname."

The other two are about half the size of his band. Now, none of these fellows want a pitched battle—they're just out to swoop down upon an unarmed gang of workmen and collar their wages. Well, I'm going to provide 'em with a pitched battle if they turn up."

"But—you can't fight a hundred men!" Shirley exclaimed. "Not by myself. But there are a good many Serbians in this city. They hate all these fellows, and they're born fighters. I've got the idea of enrolling them as laborers and supplying them with rifles. Then I shall buy off a few of the members of the gang—I can get in touch with them quite easily—and if there's any trouble they'll fight to the death as they won't want to be taken by the leaders who they despise. Altogether, we may make a job of it."

"You see, once we've got the railway going we're all right. The comitadj don't worry about railways. They want money. They won't hold up our trains because they'll contain only the products of the mines and the quarries and, later on, grain."

"I've thought out a wages system for the mines and the other depots up-country which will leave nothing in it for our friends the comitadj. In the end, you see, if I don't employ most of the gang, then—v. s. on peaceful labor, which will yield a far better return than a cut-throat business."

His eyes sparkled as he spoke. She was beginning to understand a good deal about Alan—knew that he was at once the man of affairs and the visionary, knew that the real driving force behind him was to banish chaos from the plans of Macedonia and turn the comitadj into farmers. Something in her bowed down to the builder, the creator in him—the universal father who wanted to feed and clothe and protect the whole of humanity. She glimpsed the glory of working by his side—then faded the reality that she had failed.

"Do you remember giving me those shares? Of course you've actually got them in your possession. But I want you to count me out of that, Alan. I've got nearly five thousand dollars left—I shall go on trying until I've got my passage back—then I'll go."

"Oh, we can talk about all that later," said Alan. "We don't know yet that the shares will ever be worth anything. But while we are on the subject—I only hold those shares as mortgage. Roger intended to make them over to me—somehow he didn't do it."

"I intend to write to him offering to take them as complete settlement of his debt to me. He will, of course, be bound to accept. Then, if anything comes of the venture, you and I will settle our affairs."

No that was to be the end of it, thought Shirley. In bitterness of soul she reminded herself of that morning on the moors when she had spoken grandiloquently of sharing with him the toil and the despair. There had been a ridiculous little domestic life, irksome yet at times strangely pleasant, in place of danger and disease she had nerved herself to face.

It seemed very far away—that stinging determination to pay the debt that Roger would not attempt to pay. She had at least attempted—had he not told her that she had done her best? And her best had consisted of exchanging optimistic platitudes with Stavros—and being flattered and more or less entertained by Maurois.

"If you really intend to stay on here we must come to some arrangement," Alan was saying. "It is merely quixotic for you to spend your last penny. In fact, sometime ago I was going to suggest—"

He broke off as the housekeeper entered the room. "Monsieur Maurois," she announced. Alan muttered under his breath and Shirley gave him a warning glance as the Frenchman came in. "This is a dreadful hour to call even in Macedonia," said Maurois as he shook hands with both of them. "My excuse must be that I have come to indulge in the selfish pleasure of bringing good news."

He turned to Shirley. "Dear lady, your inflexible will has at last broken the heart of my good friend, Monsieur Stavros. He has surrendered, and you must permit me to be the first to offer my congratulations."

Shirley caught her breath. She looked from Maurois to Alan, who was staring at the Frenchman oddly.

"Really, Monsieur Maurois, I don't understand. What do you mean by saying that he has 'surrendered'?"

"There arrived for him this evening authority from Athens to detail a regiment of soldiers for the protection of workers employed by your company. He was himself painfully pleased, but, as in the manner with these fellows, was seized with nervousness. I took the liberty of volunteering to bring you the news and the official authorization, which places the local General in effect under the orders of your company."

As he spoke, Maurois took a document from his pocket and handed it to Shirley. Shirley, speechless, took it from his hand.

"The instructions are that the troops are to be ready to march in fourteen days, the localities where protection is required being specified by yourselves—all details of a purely military nature being, of course, left to the officer in command," supplemented Maurois.

"Monsieur Maurois, I—I hardly know how to thank you," faltered Shirley.

"For acting as messenger from Stavros' house? Dear lady, it is not an excessive service."

"You have done more than that," said Shirley quickly. "He always put me off with platitudes and promises. I feel sure you have helped to make him take action."

Maurois shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, I will not deny that I have told him he is a lazy fellow and threatened him that you would assuredly give the American people a bad impression of him, but what would you?"

"I feel sure you have helped more than that!" protested Shirley. "I—"

Shirley, the self-possessed, stammered into silence. She fought for self-control and narrowly held it. She wanted to scream, to laugh, to cry. Through a mist she saw Alan,

this face stern. Then, dimly, she heard his voice.

"I agree with you, Maurois. 'My wife has worked very hard, but I have no doubt that she is much indebted to you. You must allow me to put a little proposition before you later—in fact, as my wife is, to an extent, my business partner, I will put it to you now. Will you accept a parcel of shares—as a little token of our gratitude?'"

"My dear Brenaway, it is delightful of you to make the offer, but I could not think of accepting it. Believe me, you grossly exaggerate my part in the affair. A trifling courtesy which I have been most happy to perform—that is all. And now I am sure Mrs. Brenaway wishes to discuss it with you and I will say good-night, my friends."

Shirley had been conscious of a jarring note. She thanked Maurois again, her exultation now dimmed with the fear that something had gone wrong.

When Alan came back she watched him and noted that he avoided her eye.

"Well, Shirley, you were just saying that you had failed and now it appears you've succeeded. You have obtained military protection for the laborers. You have, in fact, done what you set out to do. You have done what your husband refused to try—and you have succeeded where he would certainly have failed."

His voice was cold—utterly cold—yet she knew that he was nervous. She sank into a chair, hurt and bewildered. This was the moment of triumph of which she had dreamed. She had thought of herself fighting her way to this moment through toil and danger and disease. There had been none of these—it had all been too easy—and that was why Alan was talking about it as if she herself had no existence.

"Yes, here is the concession," she said, gulping back tears of disappointment. "But I believe all the same that it was Monsieur Maurois—"

"Quite!" cut in Alan. "But I recognize that that is not my affair. You remember in our original conversation way back in Vermont—"

"Don't please!" cried Shirley. "I was only going to say that—if you remember—you chose to regard your husband's debt to me as being your own in the sense that you wished to repay it. It was agreed that you would discharge your part of the debt if you were to do what he ought to have done. You have done it. How you have done it, I repeat, is not my affair."

The moment of triumph had failed. Why, oh, why was he not offering his hand and taking back the insult he had once flung at her? All these words he was giving her—formal stilted words that sounded like an accusation. . . . His last phrase echoed back into her brain and her attention seized on it.

"How did you think I did it?" she asked. "In the easy way." She stared at him, dazed. She had the impression that he had not meant to say that—that something outside his own nature had forced the words in a hoarse whisper to his lips.

"Alan!" she gasped. "Do you know what you are saying to me?" "It isn't my affair," he repeated. "But I don't want you to misunderstand my words. I tell you I am complaining of nothing. To fulfill the bargain you forced upon yourself with me, you used the weapon which you use with consummate skill."

To be continued tomorrow.

Dancing a Welcome to Spring

With New York's craggy skyline furnishing a background, these Chester Hale girls danced on nimble feet as they welcomed Spring-time in the manner of the pagans of centuries ago. The dancers braved chilly winds with their loose classic garments to welcome old Sol to the northern hemisphere, marking the vernal equinox or the beginning of Spring.

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CAPTER XXXVIII.
BUT how can you do anything without Government protection?" she asked. "I thought that was the essence of the whole thing."

"So it is to a point. But I've learned a thing or two in that office of mine—about comitadji amongst other things. There are little bands of cut-throats, of three or four men, all over this wretched country as well as all over this city. They don't exist as a problem."

"There are about three bands that matter, and the chief one, which is about a hundred fighting men strong, is under a fellow called Stephanos. He doesn't seem to have a surname."

The other two are about half the size of his band. Now, none of these fellows want a pitched battle—their idea is to swoop down upon an unarmed gang of workmen and collar their wages. Well, I'm going to provide 'em with a pitched battle if they turn up."

"But you can't fight a hundred men!" Shirley exclaimed.

"Not by myself. But there are a good many Serbians in this city. They hate all these fellows, and they're born fighters. I've got the idea of enrolling them as laborers and supplying them with rifles. Then I shall buy off a few of the members of the gang—I can get in touch with them quite easily—and if there's any trouble they'll fight to the death as they won't want to be taken by the leaders they deserted. Altogether, we may make a job of it."

"You see, once we've got the railway going we're all right. The comitadji don't worry about railways. They want money. They won't hold up our trains because they'll contain only the products of the mines and the quarries and, later on, grain."

"I've thought out a wages system for the mines and the other depots in-country which will leave nothing in it for our friends the comitadji. In the end, you see if I don't buy most of the gangs then, v. s. on peaceful labor, which will yield a far better return than the cut-throat business."

His eyes sparkled as he spoke. She was beginning to understand a good deal about Alan—knew that he was at once the man of affairs and the visionary, knew that the real driving force behind him was to banish chaos from the plans of Macedonia and turn the comitadji into farmers. Something in her bowed down to the builder, the creator in him—the universal father who wanted to feed and clothe and protect the whole of humanity. She glimpsed the glory of working by his side—then faced the reality that she had failed.

"Do you remember giving me those shares? . . . Of course you've actually got them in your possession. But I want you to count me out of that, Alan. I've got nearly five thousand dollars left—I shall go on trying until I've got my passage back—then I'll go."

"Oh, we can talk about all that later," said Alan. "We don't know yet that the shares will ever be worth anything. But while we are on the subject—I only hold those shares as mortgage. Roger intended to make them over to me—somehow he didn't do it."

"I intend to write to him offering to take them as complete settlement of his debt to me. He will, of course, be bound to accept. Then, if anything comes of the venture, you and I will settle our affairs."

So that was to be the end of it, thought Shirley. In bitterness of her soul she reminded herself of that morning on the moors when she had spoken grandiloquently of sharing with him the toil and the despair. There had been a ridiculous little domestic life, irksome yet at times strangely pleasant, in place of danger and disease she had nerved herself to face.

It seemed very far away—that stinging determination to pay the debt that Roger would not attempt to pay. She had at least attempted—had he not told her that she had done her best? And her best had consisted of exchanging optimistic platitudes with Stavros—and being flattered and more or less entertained by Maurois.

"If you really intend to stay on here we must come to some arrangement," Alan was saying. "It is merely quixotic for you to spend your last penny. In fact, sometime ago I was going to suggest—"

He broke off as the housekeeper entered the room.

"Monsieur Maurois," she announced.

Alan muttered under his breath and Shirley gave him a warning glance as the Frenchman came in. "This is a dreadful hour to call even in Macedonia," said Maurois as he shook hands with both of them. "My excuse must be that I have come to indulge in the selfish pleasure of bringing good news. He turned to Shirley. "Dear lady, your inflexible will has at last broken the heart of my good friend, Monsieur Stavros. He has surrendered, and you must permit me to be the first to offer my congratulations."

Shirley caught her breath. She looked from Maurois to Alan, who was staring at the Frenchman oddly.

"Really, Monsieur Maurois, I don't understand. What do you mean by saying that he has 'surrendered'?"

"There arrived for him this evening authority from Athens to detail a regiment of soldiers for the protection of workers employed by your company. He was himself painfully pleased, but, as in the manner with these fellows, was seized with nervousness. I took the liberty of volunteering to bring you the news and the official authorization, which places the local General in effect under the orders of your company."

As he spoke, Maurois took a document from his pocket and handed it to Shirley.

Shirley, speechless, took it from his hand. "The instructions are that the troops are to be ready to march in fourteen days, the localities where protection is required being specified by yourselves—all details of a purely military nature being, of course, left to the officer in command," supplemented Maurois. "Monsieur Maurois, I—I hardly know how to thank you," faltered Shirley.

"For acting as messenger from Stavros' house? Dear lady, it is not an excessive service."

"You have done more than that," said Shirley quickly. "He always put me off with platitudes and promises. I feel sure you have helped to make him take action."

Maurois shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, I will not deny that I have told him he is a lazy fellow and threatened him that you would assuredly give the American people a bad impression of him, but what would you?"

"I feel sure you have helped more than that!" protested Shirley. "—"

Shirley, the self-possessed, stammered into silence. She fought for self-control and narrowly held it. She wanted to scream, to laugh, to cry. Through a mist she saw Alan,

this face stern. Then, dimly, she heard his voice.

"I agree with you, Maurois. 'My wife has worked very hard, but I have no doubt that she is much indebted to you. You must allow me to put a little proposition before you later—in fact, as my wife is, to an extent, my business partner. I will put it to you now. Will you accept a parcel of shares—as a little token of our gratitude?'"

"My dear Brenaway, it is delightful of you to make the offer, but I could not think of accepting it. Believe me, you grossly exaggerate my part in the affair. A trifling courtesy which I have been most happy to perform—that is all. And now I am sure Mrs. Brenaway wishes to discuss it with you and I will say good-night, my friends."

Shirley had been conscious of a jarring note. She thanked Maurois again, her exultation now dimmed with the fear that something had gone wrong.

When Alan came back she watched him and noted that he avoided her eye.

"Well, Shirley, you were just saying that you had failed and now it appears you've succeeded. You have obtained military protection for the laborers. You have, in fact, done what you set out to do. You have done what your husband refused to try—and you have succeeded where he would certainly have failed."

His voice was cold—utterly cold—yet she knew that he was nervous. She sank into a chair, hurt and bewildered. This was the moment of triumph of which she had dreamed. She had thought of herself fighting her way to this moment through toil and danger and disease. There had been none of these—it had all been too easy—and that was why Alan was talking about it as if she herself had no existence.

"Yes, here is the concession," she said, gulping back tears of disappointment. "But I believe all the same that it was Monsieur Maurois—"

"Quite!" cut in Alan. "But I recognize that that is not my affair. You remember in our original conversation way back in Vermont—"

"Don't please!" cried Shirley.

"I was only going to say that—if you remember—you chose to regard your husband's debt to me as being your own in the sense that you wished to repay it. It was agreed that you would discharge your part of the debt if you were to do what he ought to have done. You have done it. How you have done it, I repeat, is not my affair."

The moment of triumph had failed. Why, oh, why was he not offering his hand and taking back the insult he had once flung at her? All these words he was giving her—formal stilted words that sounded like an accusation. . . . His last phrase echoed back into her brain and her attention seized on it.

"How did you think I did it?" she asked.

"In the easy way." She stared at him, dazed. She had the impression that he had not meant to say that—that something outside his own nature had forced the words in a hoarse whisper to his lips.

"Alan!" she gasped. "Do you know what you are saying to me?"

"It isn't my affair," he repeated. "But I don't want you to misunderstand my words. I tell you I am complaining of nothing. To fulfill the bargain you forced upon yourself with me, you used the weapon which you use with consummate skill."

Dancing a Welcome to Spring

With New York's craggy skyline furnishing a background, these Chester Hale girls danced on nimble feet as they welcomed Springtime in the manner of the pagans of centuries ago. The dancers braved chilly winds with their loose classic garments to welcome old Sol to the northern hemisphere, marking the vernal equinox or the beginning of Spring.
